THE OAKWOOD, mirrors the subtle effect in living room, and in kitchen, has all the ingredients for a highly successful house for entertaining on all occasions. It is a versatile 1 1/2-level with four bedrooms, two baths and two fulls and an additional one with bath on the lower level. The latter can serve as a dining, guest room—and if the need arises the entire lower level can be laid up for an in-law apartment.

All of the elevations for The Oakwood are good looking. It is priced at $2,800.

The window treatments and exterior look of The Hickorywood are neat and there are several little touches inside that make it a house worth considering. The living room and family are separated by a fireplace and (overstaircase).

There is a functional work relationship between the kitchen and dining room and between the kitchen and family room. Updates open the links four bedrooms attractively planned around a pooltable plan.

The Hickorywood is $2,800.

does not rely upon the available good situation.

Much of the school is, crapped, with any virtually child-proof and should the need for a school in the future disappear the building could be used for a wide variety of other community or civic uses.

It does not seem to blend particularly well with the neighborhood but it provides the Cherry Creek School District with still another existing building to challenge designers' imagination.

The school building was designed by Cassell, Howitt, Neill of Los Angeles and William C. Hallerman, architect from Denver. Hallerman was the main responsible for the dramatic,敦敦敦 school in the same general area which opened last fall.
